1. This is a final proof of the project stated above. This implies that Deja treats the project to be the final, error-free version in every form. The purpose of this contract is to ensure the final project meets the clients expectations and to maintain accuracy and accountability between both parties. The client finds the project to be free of errors, defects and to be indicative of the final version. The client will sign this contract agreeing to this statement and fax it to Deja, at which point Deja will handle the print production. Failure to perform either of these actions will result in the project entering an "on hold" status, which may result in a delay and/or missed deadlines. It is imperative that you respond as soon as possible. The deadline for printing is 12:00 PM on the Tuesday of every week. The written approval of the client, in the form of this contract, should therefore be completed by Tuesday morning or earlier to keep the project on or ahead of schedule.

2. It must be stressed that signing this contract is perceived as consent by the client that no other changes need to be made to the project before being printed. While Deja has performed every measure possible to ensure correctness and accuracy, it is the full responsibility of the client to determine if the project meets all requirements. If, after signing this contract, the client wishes to make any changes or alterations to the project, additional expenses, reprinting or handling costs may occur and will be charged to the client in full.

i) This remains in effect if the inaccuracies are caused by Deja, which includes but is not limited to: spelling, punctuation or grammatical errors; text or image misplacements; erroneous additions or omissions; incorrect size or unexpected design, image or font usage. If the client notices any of these problems, they should express their concerns before signing this contract.

ii) Due to differences in equipment, processing, printing substrates, paper, inks, pigments and other conditions between colour proofing and production press operations, a reasonable variation in colour between colour proofs and the completed project shall constitute acceptable delivery. If the accuracy of the colour in the project is of the utmost importance, certain measures can be taken to minimize the potential variances. If this is the case, the client should express their concerns before signing this contract, although it should be acknowledged that a perfect match can not be guaranteed under any circumstances.

iii) Folding, perforations, cutting and trimming are all performed by machines that are maintained according to industry standards. Reasonable variations in these aspects shall constitute acceptable delivery.
